

Paulo José do Amaral Sobral

Paulo Sobral is Full Professor at “Universidade de São Paulo” (USP), Dean of the “Faculty of Animal Science and Food Engineering” (FZEA-USP), and Researcher of Conselho Nacional de Desenvolvimento Científico e Tecnológico (CNPq), level 1A.

He is teacher in “Physical-Chemistry of Foods” and “Mass Transfer” and his researches has been focused in drying of food, glass transition of freeze-dried pulps of tropical fruits, meat quality and edible and/or biodegradable films based on biopolymers, with 130 published papers (ISI h-index= 24; Google Scholar h-index= 28).

He is member of the Board of the “International Association for Engineering and Food” (IAEF) and member of Advisory Board of Iseki-Food Association (IFA). He is also Associate Editor of the “International Journal of Food Studies” and member of the Editorial Board of “Food Engineering Reviews”, “PeerJ”, “Ciência e Tecnologia de Alimentos” and “Newsletters of IFA”, and Ad hoc Referee of CNPq, CAPES and FAPESP. Moreover, he was Director (2001-2; 2005-6; 2009-10) of the Brazilian Society of Food Science and Technology (SBCTA), Associate Editor of the “Brazilian Journal of Food Technology” (1997-07), “Ciência e Tecnologia de Alimentos”, and “Boletim da SBCTA” (2001-2), and Vice-Dean of the FZEA-USP (2009-2013).