

Roger A. Clemens

Dr. Roger A. Clemens received an AB in Bacteriology, a MPH in Nutrition, and a DrPH in Public Health Nutrition and Biological Chemistry from the University of California, Los Angeles.

Dr. Clemens is part-time faculty within the USC Regulatory Science program where he also enjoys an adjunct appointment as Professor of Pharmacology and Pharmaceutical Sciences within the USC School of Pharmacy and Professor of Food Science and Nutrition at California State University, Northridge. He is the Chief Scientific Officer for Horn (a distributor of specialty ingredients, raw materials and chemicals). He served as Scientific Advisor for Nestlé USA for more than 21 years.

He is a past president (2012-2013) of the Institute of Food Technologists (IFT) and former member of the IFT Board of Directors. He served on numerous IFT expert panels, including Functional Foods, and Making Decisions about the Risks of Chemicals in Foods with Limited Scientific Information.

Dr. Clemens received many awards for his leadership in IFT, the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics, and in local universities. He is a fellow in the American College of Nutrition, a Fellow in the International Academy of Food Science and Technology, and a Fellow in the Marilyn Magaram Center for Food Science, Nutrition and Dietetics. He is an active member in the Society of Toxicology and the American College of Toxicology. He is an associate editor of the Journal of Food Science, and an editorial board member for Food Chemical Toxicology.